就整個美國來說，聖荷西華人先民血汗和遺跡是比較不受重視的。即使是在學術論著裏，也常遺漏這一章，但是聖荷西確有華人的歷史，可惜的是，這些歷史都形跡模糊，墓場就是其中之一。

中國人想擁有自己的墓場，有着悲傷的意義。生前受孤立，歧視，那麼死後讓我們緊緊相守在一起。老僑或土生華僑團體或多或少都知道墓場，新僑所知就不多，首先改善墓場的劉國能屬於老僑，他對先民有著天生的感情，又熱衷於聖荷西地方事務，爲了維護華人遺跡，進入出市議會無數次。

現在主管墓場的「南灣歷史華美墓場協會」是個非營利組織，由有

四分之一中國血統的ZANCK，因發起組成，據說她會介入此事，係因當時她在做全加州華人遺跡的調查工作。

屬於劉國能和她之間的不愉快事件，由於她似乎有意迴避記者的訪問，無法得知她的解釋，不過該協會還有一個足堪玩味的現象——許多會員對該組織所知不多。

去年擔任副會長的一位劉先生，接到記者電話的第一個反應是「找錯人了」，在接下去的談話中，他說該組織相當鬆散，各團體每年派一名代表組成共同管理委員會，每年人都不一樣，他個人現已不在委員會內，不明瞭現況。

上述某團體的一位會長表示，由於會上派去開會的代表未向他報告墓場協會開會的情形，他對實際情況了解不多，他並且把現任墓場協會會長的名字弄錯了。

近一個月墓場協會開會討論籌款事宜，表示墓場現況有望改善。除了籌募年度維護經費外，有人更希望能將它列入「古蹟」之林。

怎麼籌這筆經費，怎麼來做，都不會是簡單的問題。劉國能四、五年前曾跟三藩市的家庭協會談到這件事，劉國能表示，他們願意出一些經費，將這塊墓地整建為古蹟，

土地的主權問題增加了這事情的複雜面，很明顯的，主權屬於當初購買的八個人，但八個人已去，又無子孫出面，現在的方式，是將主權歸於中國人，代表中國人的是一南灣歷史華美墓場協會。

而該協會的「代表性」又是否需要經過認可呢？所謂的中國人，是指土生、舊僑、新僑，或僅是其中的一兩種呢？如果土地有所變動，誰有權利來替先民行事？

在這些問題獲致妥善解決前，現行管理團體至少應該做到兩件事，一爲善盡維護之責，以配合市容的美觀，二爲藉用傳播媒介，促進協會與中國社區的了解，以資徵信。

也不清楚，有人說六個，有人說十五個，不過此間的華裔美人團體大概都包括進去了，有史丹福區的中華聯誼會，半島中華協會，華美公民聯盟，華美商會，華美婦女俱樂部等。

華美商會的林忠雄亦參加籌款會議，他的提議是或將土地賣給橡山墓園，以所得款項建廟，廟中保存先民牌位及其他流散的先民古物，或將該地交給市府，由市府規劃管理。

Dear _____

The South Bay Historic Chinese American Cemetery Corporation, composed of individuals from supporting CCC organizations, has been meeting and supervising the upkeep of the historic cemetery next to Oak Hill ~~for several years~~. (Please read the enclosed brochure.) since 1980.

Due to the vagueness of ~~the Deed~~ the Deed of Title and liability of taxes, the corporation has been maintaining the cemetery on the premise of "adverse possession" [i.e., keeping up the property continuously for 5 years automatically assumes the ownership] and has been concerned that if ~~the papers~~ court proceedings are not filed for ownership soon that ~~the property will revert to the~~ ownership of Oak Hill Cemetery or to the adjacent landowner. instituted to clear title to the land,

If that should occur, all remains would be removed and the area could be used for a parking lot or other nondescript usage of urban development; thus we would lose the last existing historic Chinese American relic in the Santa Clara Valley.

Therefore, money is needed to pay for a survey of the lot, which is required to acquire title and also to have a bronze plaque made to identify the cemetery. The estimated cost of a survey is close to $1,000 and the corporation has been unsuccessful in finding anyone who would do it gratis or for considerably less. The filing fees are several hundred dollars and a bronze plaque would be several hundred dollars as well.

We are requesting at this time that each participating CCC organization contribute a minimum of $150 towards this project, so that we may proceed as soon as possible.

Checks are payable to: South Bay Historic Chinese American Cemetery Corporation and may be sent to the address below.

Sincerely,

Doris Liu
Secretary

ORGANIZATION REPRESENTATION:

It was noted that we should have notified Francis Wong (CACA) for this meeting.

Julian reported that the plaque would be mounted on the gate with 1-way screws/bolts and burned off.

The engraved plaque would be 18" x 24" in size.

DEED:

The deed was signed on May 12, 1900.

PROJECTED COSTS:

$900	Survey
$400	Plaque; engraved and mounted
$	Cleanup

Kennedy renews call for debate on eve of Maine caucuses

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, campaigning in Maine where polls show him running behind President Carter, said Saturday his challenge of the president will not be truly tested until Carter agrees to debate the issues.

Kennedy told a news conference that "I don't think it's any mystery to the American people that there has to be a full dialogue and discussion and debate on issues."

"I think my candidacy will be tested truly when we do have such debate and discussion."

The Massachusetts Democrat declined to make any predictions on the outcome of today's Democratic caucuses, saying only that "I'm confident we have support in the state."

However, published polls show Kennedy running behind Carter in this New England state.

Kennedy said that regardless of the outcome in Maine, "We're going to continue the campaign."

Kennedy long since has backed away from his statement that he "must" win in Maine and New Hampshire, which holds its primary Feb. 26. The senator made that assertion after losing to Carter by a 2-1 margin in the Jan. 21 Iowa precinct caucuses.

Kennedy urged the Democrats to "send a special message to Mr. Carter to come out of the Rose Garden and begin to debate and discuss the important issues of our time."

Carter's refusal to debate has been a major theme of Kennedy's campaign since his Iowa defeat.

Earlier, Kennedy accused Carter of pursuing "milk toast" economic policies that will keep inflation and interest rates high while more than 1 million workers lose their jobs this year.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., also seeking to wrest the nomination from the president, spent the day campaigning in Maine, hoping to cut into Carter and Kennedy support.

The Maine spotlight fell solely on the Democrats, with the GOP caucuses taking place over a six-week span. None of the Republican contenders campaigned in the state Saturday.

Among the major GOP presidential contenders, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan stumped for support in New Hampshire and Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee campaigned in Puerto Rico.

During a visit to Hooksett, N.H., Reagan called for an immediate program of promotion and incentive enlistment to build the strength of the Army Reserve.

And he repeated his opposition to registering women for the draft.

"I wouldn't want to belong to a society that would put its women in trenches with men," he said.

Most observers have said they believe Carter will add a victory in Maine to his win in last month's Iowa's precinct caucuses, further damaging Kennedy's already staggering campaign. And a poll published Friday by the Bangor Daily News said Carter leads Kennedy among registered Democrats in the state by 19 percentage points.

But Vice President Walter F. Mondale, stumping Maine on Friday on behalf of Carter, said, "This is going to be a very, very close race."

Maine will send 22 delegates to this summer's Democratic National Convention, and today's caucuses are the first step in a two-step selection process. The final step will be when the party holds its state convention on May 16-17.

In his speech before the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees in Washington, Kennedy said Carter's recent economic forecast is for "double digit inflation, very little hope about lowering of interest rates and a million and a half people who are holding jobs today are going to be put on the unemployment lists of this country."

Income rise in West tops average

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Personal income has been rising faster than the national average in the Southwest, Far West, New England and Rocky Mountain regions, the Commerce Department said Saturday.

The Plains, Great Lakes, Midwest and Southeast regions had below-average increases.

The figures — which include wages, rents, interest and all other major types of income — are for the third quarter of 1979 — July through September.

Forty-nine states and the District of Columbia had some increase in personal income during that period, the department said. Only South Dakota had no increase.

In 39 states and the District of Columbia, the rise in income kept up with or exceeded inflation as measured by the department's price deflator for personal consumption.

There is considerable controversy, however, whether this means people in those states actually got the better of inflation.

The Commerce Department's inflation index has been lagging about 2 points behind the 13 percent annual rise in the better-known Consumer Price Index. The two measures differ in the way they compute housing costs. Each has its adherents.

The main significance of the figures is to show how personal income has risen in individual states and regions with respect to each other.

States with the largest increases in personal income were: North Dakota, which had an increase of 5 percent during the quarter (not adjusted for inflation); Arkansas, 3.9 percent; and California, 3.8 percent.

Necessities up 17.6% in 1979

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of the necessities of life — food, housing, energy and health care — rose 17.6 percent during 1979, by far the biggest jump of the decade, an economic research group reported Saturday.

Rising consumer prices for these necessities were responsible for virtually all the increase in the overall rate of inflation during the last two years, the National Center for Economic Alternatives said.

During 1979, prices of non-necessities rose only 6.8 percent, it said.

Based on the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index, the group noted that during 1979 energy prices rose 37.4 percent, the price of shelter 17.4 percent, food 10.2 percent and medical care 10.1 percent.

The group's most striking finding — not clearly spelled out in government reports — was that there has been a virtual explosion in prices of necessities during the last four years.

Prices of necessities rose 3.7 percent in 1976, 8.3 percent in 1977, 10.8 percent in 1978 and 17.6 percent last year, it said.

Non-necessities did not rise above 7 percent in any year.

Hopeful Japantown looks to future

City in a city tries to retain character

By Miles Corwin
Staff Writer

Masako Nakanishi's life has changed little since she left Japan 65 years ago. Her days are spent tending the dwarf pine trees, flowers and oriental vegetables in her garden and bantering in Japanese with neighborhood merchants while on her shopping rounds in San Jose's Japantown.

"The shopping area is still very much like a small Japanese city," Mrs. Nakanishi said as her daughter, Fusaye, translated.

Mrs. Nakanishi still buys tofu, an oriental soybean curd cake, from a merchant in her neighborhood who prepares the dish in the traditional manner. She never has had to change her style of cooking — Japanese vegetables, seasonings, fish, seaweed and green teas are all stock items at several local markets.

She attends a Buddhist church a few blocks from home and devotes several hours a week to a Japanese flower arranging group. It never has been necessary for her to learn English because she rarely strays from her neighborhood, which is home to more of San Jose's 12,000 residents of Japanese heritage than any other part of the city.

Mrs. Nakanishi, 83, has survived the death of her husband, three years in an internment camp during World War II and a drastically changed world.

But one thing has provided stability and remained constant for Mrs. Nakanishi — her sprawling city's compact Japantown.

Japantown, like Mrs. Nakanishi, has survived in a changing world. It has withstood the forced exodus of its residents to internment camps, the voluntary exodus of later generations, urban blight and suburban flight.

Although Japantown is a bit ragged around the edges and most merchants draw from a narrow clientele, the businesses are solvent and the neighborhood's ethnic identity remains intact.

"I believe Japantown will survive throughout my lifetime and I hope beyond," Mrs. Nakanishi says. "Tradition is important."

Roy Murotsune is worried about the future of Japantown. Murotsune, owner of Roy's Mobil on Jackson Street, says most young people are not willing to take over their parents' businesses.

Most merchants in the heart of Japantown, on Jackson Street between Third and Sixth streets, are in their late 50s and older. Many of their children had the opportunity to go to college and have their own professions today. Murotsune and other businessmen worry that when they retire, outsiders will take over the businesses and the character of Japantown will be permanently changed.

"The kids don't want to work the long hours of their parents," Murotsune says. "They want to work 9 to 5 and, hey, you can't knock the fringe benefits."

Lincoln Tokunaga, 69, owner of Jackson Drugs, is ready to retire. His two sons are not interested in taking over the business, and he does not want to sell the pharmacy to a company out of character with the neighborhood.

"My kids are from the Vietnam War generation and like so many, aren't interested in small businesses," he says. "I'm ready to sell and retire anytime. But I want to sell to someone who will keep the business as a Japanese trading center."

Another force, in addition to the younger generation fleeing to the suburbs, could change Japantown.

A city planning department report, containing recommendations by merchants and residents, proposed turning Jackson Street into a mall filled with Japanese restaurants and shops and placing a large Torii gate at the entrance. The report warned that if the neighborhood does not adapt to serve the needs of businessmen and tourists it could wither away.

More parking and cultural attractions could draw new customers and aid in the overall revival of the downtown area, according to the report, and businesses from Japan should also be considered.

The Japantown study has been extended another six months by the city council, and the proposals have met with a mixed response, said Aki Toyoshima, president of the Jackson-Taylor Business Association. Merchants are divided on the extent of change needed.

"All of us agree that there is a great need for more parking," says Hank Nishijima, the owner of Hank's Coffee Shop on Jackson Street. "We welcome bringing new money into the area. We need improvements, but the question is how much? I don't think a big mall is really necessary — it may get too touristy. A refacing of the area would be sufficient. We don't need a major overhaul."

The rhythm of Japantown is a slow counterpoint to the pace of greater San Jose.

The neighborhood has the ambiance of a small town. Residents can shop, worship, dine out and visit doctors and dentists without ever leaving the jagged boundaries of Japantown or speaking a word of English.

For many longtime residents, the day begins at Hank's Coffee Shop. It is the only restaurant in San Jose that offers Tsukeno (pickled radishes) and rice along with eggs and toast.

"You can't get that at Denny's," the owner announces proudly.

During the morning hours, elderly residents make the shopping rounds. Tofu is purchased at one of the two small shops devoted exclusively to it. Major shopping items usually are purchased at the Dobashi market, the largest of the neighborhood markets and the oldest — established in 1912. The market carries more than 100 types of teas, a well-stocked counter of fish and meat for oriental dishes, five varieties of Japanese beer and one of the most varied selections of seaweed products this side of Tokyo.

At noon the elderly abandon the streets as the city office workers de-restaurant owner

cend upon Japantown for lunch. The air is thick with the smell of soy sauce and broiled fish as the more than 10 restaurants stoke their fires. Parking becomes a problem and the arterial streets off Jackson fill with cars.

After lunch, the small-town atmosphere returns. Merchants chat on the sidewalks. Women meet at the Ginza cafe and other small restaurants for green tea and gossip.

On the side streets a glance into a few back yards reveals elderly Japanese tending the Nasubi and Kyuri crop. A shogi game, Asian chess, might be under way at the Japanese-American Community Senior Service center, and a few women might be playing Hana, a card game, in a neighborhood living room.

As late afternoon turns to dusk and the Santa Cruz mountains are silhouetted against the sky, a train whistle blows from the Southern Pacific tracks off North Seventh Street signaling the second of the day's hectic changes.

Mercedes and large American cars from the West Valley, Willow Glen and other enclaves roll down Jackson Street. The restaurants fill, and empty hours later, by 9 p.m., Japantown is still again.

Japanese first entered the United States in numbers in 1885. The majority of the immigrants were from rural communities and some were attracted to the Santa Clara Valley's farming industry.

The first Japanese businesses were founded in the early 1900s, intermingled with the Chinese stores along North Sixth and Jackson streets. As Japanese immigration grew, the neighborhood became the social, economic and cultural center for the outlying Japanese farmers, according to Patti Jo Hirabayashi, author of "San Jose Nihonmachi," a study of Japantown.

The church known today as the Wesley Methodist Church was founded by Japanese immigrants in 1895 and the San Jose Buddhist Church was established in 1902. Hospitals, schools, cultural societies soon followed and Japantown eventually replaced the older Chinatown.

Harry S. Nishiura, general manager of the Koto restaurant, recalled the thriving Japanese community.

"There were a half-dozen hotels, grocery stores, public bath houses ... everything you could want. In addition to the local people, there were a lot of Japanese seasonal workers who stayed in the hotels for the picking season each year and then moved on."

"We had sumo wrestling matches on a ball field down the street."

"But then the war came ..." he said breaking off in mid-sentence and staring out a window.

On Feb. 19, 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the order that dealt with the "enemy alien problem" — evacuation of all persons of Japanese descent from the Pacific Coast area. Merchants had to leave their businesses, and farmers were forced to abandon their land. After about 50 years of steady growth, Japantown suddenly ceased to exist.

When the war ended some former Japantown merchants stayed in the Midwest, near the internment camps, and others returned back to Japan. But still others returned to San Jose and began to rebuild their lives and neighborhood.

Within three years, Japantown was a bustling area once again. Today, there are more than 50 businesses in the Japantown area.

This same spirit to prevail will keep Japantown alive, despite the vicissitudes of the surrounding city and the world, Nishiura predicted.

"My generation did not abandon Japantown, even after we were forced to live in camps in other states. The younger generation also will keep it alive. A few will take over their fathers' businesses and the others will patronize the shops and restaurants."

"They will not let Japantown die."
